Once It's All Over, "Our, the American People's" Election 2026 will turn out like every other election since America started having elections. Positions of lawful authority will be occupied by people who will strive to make their personal attitudes, values, and beliefs (PAVB) lawfully compulsory so they can confiscate property (wealth) and restrict choice (Liberty). Our job is to rein in their authority

Pride Parade Followed Closely By Disinfectant Parade

“We, the American People” can expect cheers for those who win Election 2026 after having declared their intent to tax America’s wealthiest and redistribute property (wealth) confiscated under such taxation. For such taxation to produce redistributed property (wealth) on a sustained basis, there must be continued property (wealth) generation to be taxed. Wealth, at any level, is generated through sales.

It Would Be Very Smart for “Us, the American People” to see clearly there is no wealth generation without consumers stopping by Walmart or a Rolls Royce dealer to exchange money for something else of value. They who invest in Walmart and Rolls Royce and let their investments grow become those wealth people ‘tax-the-rich’ advocates go after when they can’t get money elsewhere.

'Tax-The-Rich' Advocates who win Election 2026 so they can confiscate property (wealth) from America's wealthiest will have no alternative but to tax America's less wealthy when America's wealthiest stop investing only to have their returns-on-investments (ROI) confiscated by people who are willing to engage in legal thievery. Oddly, 'tis also true about choice.

Should “We, the American People” query AI as to need for and economic system to be regulated, we are, like as not, to be advised lack of regulation can lead to exploitation. ~ John S. Coleman

It Would Not Be An Unreasonable Conclusion for “Us, the American People” to interpret need for economic regulation as evidence people tend to seek ways to control other people’s freedom of choice. Not to say controlling choice is demonic. Rather, need to control choice is, in part, at least, driven by desire to be philanthropic. Could be construed to mean competition is unfair, absent equal opportunity.

As we celebrate America's 250th Anniversary, we are in a place that is confusing and concerning. There's a loud boisterous movement in our nation to destroy our Independence and remove our Constitution. The Marxist-democrats refuse our sovereignty as a nation, and they reject our Constitutional Republic.

The old saying, "Our Founding Fathers are rolling over in their graves," came to my mind, but we have their words from which to glean encouragement. Their wisdom was scripted and preserved so that we can know and understand how this nation came to be and who we are as a Free People. As I studied the words of Thomas Paine to share with you here on Substack, and as I watch the news night after night, I questioned, "What would our Founding Fathers say?"

Reflections Of A Few Great Men

If Thomas Paine were here today,

I wonder, just what would he say.

THESE are the times that try men's souls.

He bared his heart as he penned so bold.

For the Tories he had great disdain,

For their loyalty to the king remained.

The loyalty to political parties of today?

I think we know what he would say.

The summer soldiers will not defend.

The cost of Liberty is foreign to them.

The sunshine patriots of today,

In every crisis, they do sway.

Loyalty? For love of party they do vote.

It is power, not Liberty about which they gloat.

He pledged for freedom and Independence,

But for the king's government, he did lament.

He wrote of the battles hither and yonder,

For brave Jersey Maids he often did ponder.

For Independence they did demand,

For truth and sovereignty of this great land!

Bound by tyranny, their taxes we must pay.

The chains of debt oppress us in every single way.

If Benjamin Franklin were here today,

I wonder just what would he say.

“We hoped you would keep it,” the old man cried,

“Consent of the Governed, you lost it. Why?”

If it is in democracy you believe,

Liberty to your posterity, you will not leave.

John Adams was a man of faith.

He said God’s laws made America Great!

The Constitution will be of no avail

If immoral people are allowed to prevail.

We must remember these men of old,

And like them, we must be bold.

Hamilton spoke of enthusiasm,

The want for Liberty brought great Heroism.

Marxism and terrorism plague our land,

Arise true Patriots and take your stand!

Fight, Fight, Fight, Don’t let them win,

We must make America Great Again!

On this 250th Anniversary it is time for all of us to awaken the patriot within and...
