It's Common Knowledge Presidential parties lose more than win midterm elections. Lots of theories beg "Us, the American People" to hail their supposition. There's one undeniable thesis: losing party gets fewer votes. All things considered, not so hard to figure. Despite presidential campaign promises to make life better for they who vote for presidential candidates, presidential candidates aren't godlike.

"In reality, however, a non-political governmental institution is as likely as a barking cat."

~ Thomas DiLorenzo

“Our, the American People’s” President Donald J. Trump’s on-going battle with America’s courts shows how desperate are people to gain or undo lawful power. Lawful power is a frightful thing in hands of people caught up in a quest to force others to behave as told. America’s government – all governments – are staffed by people who act on their personal attitudes, values, and beliefs (PAVB).

Social Diversity Has An Inherent resistance to lawful force contrary to cultural norms. Then, there are those who believe they are disadvantaged because society has unwritten rules against their odds of achieving comparative success. There is, arguably, a more fundamental reason why sitting administration s don’t fare well in midterm elections. They don’t deliver as they promise they will.

"Man had better be without education than be educated by their rulers."

~ Thomas Hodgskin

"We, the American People," even if sitting administrations can cite evidence they, in fact, kept their campaign words, we do not believe they delivered on their promises as our PAVB interpreted them to make our lives more prosperous. President Donald J. Trump's political party has a hold on slender Congressional majorities, and doesn't have all his membe4rship behind him. They want his job.

“Our, the American People’s” Supreme Court of the United States (SCOTUS) Justice Ketanji Brown Jackson’s notions of how SCOTUS (all American courts) ought take on serving justice is by something called critical legal studies. Or, so contends a media writer considering Justice Ketanji Brown Jackson’s proclivity for challenging SCOTUS decisions Justice Ketanji Brown Jackson singularly dissents.

"And to say that society ought to be governed by the opinion of the wisest and best, though true, is useless. Whose opinion is to decide who are the wisest and best?"

"We, the American People" would not be too far afield of rationality to consider critical legal studies on a functional par with systemic racism. Both hold an idea of societal behavior as structured to favor some people or groups over others. Judges, including SCOTUS Justices, are oath-bound to conduct their affairs with impartiality, neutrality, and fairness, in contrast to inherent proclivity and bias.

"Men are never so likely to settle a question rightly as when they discuss it freely."

~ Thomas Babington Macaulay

It Would Be Smart for "Us, the American People" to regard courts, critical legal studies, and systemic racism as laced with, whether they are just, personal attitudes, values, and beliefs (PAVB). There being no immutable standards for serving justice – or, infusing societal norms – government and safe, orderly society demand it be our task to, as we are able, counterweight PAVB causing societal discord.

"Nothing is so galling to a people not broken in from birth as a paternal, or, in other words, a meddling government, a government which tells them what to read, and say, and eat, and drink and wear."

~ Thomas Babington Macaulay

Societal Diversity, Arguably, Underpins people's ability to live as they choose. Law, arguably, takes away choice, i.e., law is imposed by force. When laws are applied to define societal norms, then PAVB held by lawmakers is bound to permeate legislative substance and law enforcement. SCOTUS Justice Ketanji Brown Jackson is no less influenced by PAVB than is anyone else Of Planet Earth's 8(+) billion.

A party with balloons and cake and ice cream is always a good time! A political party (or two) who decide they are no longer servants to their constituents but are their own masters, are no longer the best at representing Americans.

As a Constitutional Republic, We the People elect others who are to represent us, Consent of the Governed. What has happened throughout the decades of our existence as a nation, however, is that two very prominent political parties have emerged to dominate the political arena.

These parties no longer act in the best interests of their constituents or even America's best interests. They make politics a career and are completely detached from average Americans. When their positions become careers, their integrity is lost due to "insider trading," and deal making for profits and donations for their next election. DC Occupiers, Occupying Offices and Cuttin' Deals.

However, it isn't just DC officials who get caught up in all the deals. It has been state officials who allowed the selling of American land to foreign nations (aka China).

Bureaucracies have taken over our government from the local level all the way to DC. Remember, bureaucrats are unelected and are basically the creation of the elected.

After reading the words of our Founding Fathers, I'm always amazed at their wisdom, and find their words to be prophetic as their advice and warnings are applicable to us today.

In his farewell address, September 17, 1796, President George Washington warned us about relying on political parties.

"However [political parties] may now and then answer popular ends, they are likely in the course of time and things, to become potent engines, by which cunning, ambitious, and unprincipled men will be enabled to subvert the power of the people and to usurp for themselves the reins of government, destroying afterwards the very engines which have lifted them to unjust dominion."

I highlighted a couple of words and phrases that I felt would be pertinent to our understanding; okay, I highlighted it all!

Elon Musk wants to create a strong well-funded third party, but as our nation is now being governed by the uni-party, the third will either fail or be swallowed up by the same mentality of governing.

“When the people find that they can vote themselves money, that will herald the end of the republic.” Benjamin Franklin

Since We the People have grown to depend on government and expect government to “help” us, we must take part of the blame for their becoming potent engines, by which cunning, ambitious, and unprincipled men will be enabled to subvert the power of the people and to usurp for themselves the reins of government...

Eternal vigilance is the price of Liberty... and Liberty is always in the hands of We the People. We will need to make some sacrifices in order to secure Liberty for our “posterity.”

“When once a Republic is corrupted, there is no possibility of remedying any of the growing evils but by removing the corruption and restoring its lost principles; every other correction is either useless or a new evil.” Thomas Jefferson

The political parties are out of control, that is a fact! They can only have the power We the People give them... their positions don't need to be a lifetime career.

My personal opinion is to destroy one party (the democrats) by giving them a very “fat” minority. (I prefer voting them all out) That will send a message to both parties! The republicans can no longer hide behind the democrats and if they continue to refuse the will of the people, they too can receive a B-2 bomb from the voters at their next election.

"Wherever standing armies are kept up, and the right of the people to keep and bear arms is, under any colour or pretext whatsoever, prohibited, liberty, if not already annihilated, is on the brink of destruction."

~ St. George Tucker

Father Paul, A Well-Known Priest in Athens, Greece, hosted Holy Land tours with groups from Athens. On a return trip a traveler made mention of how numerous were churches in Athens. Father Paul concurred, then went on to say. a true church resides in a person's heart, not in piles of stones. "We, the American People" might give similar thought to laws requiring Ten Commandments posting.

"Why is it that millions of children who are pushouts or dropouts amount to business as usual in the public schools, while one family educating a child at home becomes a major threat to universal public education and the survival of democracy?"

~ Stephen Arons

Media Report "Our, the American People's" Supreme Court of the United States (SCOTUS) may decide on lawful legitimacy to require public school Ten Commandment posting. Debate over posting centers on America's federal (U.S./National) Constitution 1st Amendment and idea of Church and State separation. Curious, given we are a self-governing sovereign citizenry, SCOTUS would be engaged.

"An important art of politicians is to find new names for institutions which under old names have become odious to the public."

~ Talleyrand

Court Decisions On Matters beyond sensical seldom resolve or reconcile. Rather, we, a supposed free-thinking, self-governing, sovereign citizenry, are prompted to be more antagonistic and acrimonious over socio-economic court decisions where some win, some lose. Such court opinions, invariably, end up fought over continuously, not uncommonly with SCOTUS overturning SCOTUS.

"The king has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent Swarms of Officers to harass our People and eat out their substance."

~ The Declaration of Independence

No one can hurt you if you detach yourself from everything and avoid becoming emotionally invested in anyone

It Would Be Smart for "Us, the American People" to keep courts out of refereeing matters like Ten Commandments posting. With no courts passing judgement on Ten Commandments postings, individual schools would have to deal with posting, based on how school clients (parents/kids/communities) decide. Courts could, as courts should, penalize they who throw stones.

"Whenever you see people standing in a line, you know that either the government or Apple is involved (though for different reasons)."

~ The Editor
